SUBJECT: PFIAB and Congressional Staff Inquiries (C)

1. It is becoming increasingly difficult to monitor inquiries and tasking coming into the Agency from the PFIAB staff and Congressional Staffs, particularly when these are done informally either by telephone or personally. (C)

2. In order to allow for rational management of our responses to inquiries from the PFIAB and Congressional Staffs, it is essential that this work be channeled through a single focal point. Neither the problem nor the solution are new, but it is imperative that your staffs be instructed to abide by the following:

- All PFIAB staff inquiries and tasking should be done through the office of the Executive Director. If contacted directly by the PFIAB staff, you should refer them to the EXDIR's office without making any commitments.
- All Congressional inquiries should be referred to the Office of Congressional Affairs. This includes inquiries from the General Accounting Office, Congressional Research Office, the Office of Technology Assessment and the Congressional Budget Office. (C)

STAT

SUBJECT: Funneling PFIAB and Congressional Inquiries through
ExDir and OCA, Respectively

In the note you plan to write on this subject, it would be useful to mention that OCA should act as the central point not only for inquiries from Congress, but also for inquiries from the four subordinate agencies of Congress. These are the General Accounting Office, Congressional Research Office, Office of Technology Assessment and Congressional Budget Office. Although we don't do a great deal of business with these four agencies--we average approximately five inquiries per month--it is not uncommon for the inquiries to be addressed directly to some component other than OCA. This can lead to coordination problems.
